After your vaccination you may experience soreness, redness, or swelling at the site, which should reduce quite quickly. You may also experience a low grade fever, itching or aches and pain. Rest, keep hydrated and the effects should soon pass. If you are concerned that your side effects are persisting, or are of a severe nature, contact your general practitioner immediately.

For emergencies call 000, or to report minor adverse events call the Adverse Medicines Events line on 1300 134 237.

For further information visit www.medicines.org.au