

Recognition of Prior Learning Policy

Guild Training is committed to the Principles of Recognition or Prior Learning (RPL) and Recognition of Current Competencies (RCC) and will provide all learners with access to these recognition and assessment services.

The underlying principle of RPL is that no learner should be required to undertake a subject/unit/module/competency in a course for which they are already able to demonstrate satisfactory achievement of the performance outcomes in. RPL involves the systematic assessment and acknowledgment of relevant and verifiable skills, knowledge and competencies.

Guild Training supports an approach which values all learning, however achieved, through an open and transparent approach to assessment and recognition. Guild Training recognises that learning takes place not only through formal studies at accredited institutions but also through activities such as employer-based training and development and relevant life experience.

Procedure: actions and responsibilities

Each potential or enrolled learner is supported and guided by Guild Training staff to complete the Recognition of Prior Learning Kit relevant to the level of the qualification that they are applying to gain recognition. When a learner notifies Guild Training that they wish to undertake a Recognition of Prior Learning they are provided with an RPL kit to complete. Included with the RPL kit is instructions and information to assist them to complete the document. All learners are provided with a Guild Trainer who they can contact to discuss their application.	State Branches
On submission of the RPL kit the Guild Trainer will examine the evidence, document the evidence and identify the units of competency that will be assessed during the RPL.	State Branches
Where an application for RPL is made on the basis of non-formal education, self-directed learning or previous work or life experiences, appropriate evidence will need to be provided for this. The onus shall be on the learner to provide appropriate evidence or demonstrate the relevant skills, knowledge and understanding.	Learner
The Guild Trainer will then contact the learner and pharmacy to make an appointment to conduct the RPL. During this contact the Guild Trainer will explain the recognition process, outline the methods used to determine competency, clarify any issues, request a private area to undertake the RPL (if applicable) and explain the time requirements needed to complete this process.	State Branches
The Guild Trainer will review all the available evidence and evidence gathered during the telephone contact or pharmacy visit (if applicable). From the evidence the Guild Trainer will	State Branches

determine the units of competency for which the learner will gain recognition. When assessing credit for work or life experience, the following will be taken into account: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Authenticity – the applicant has actually demonstrated the learning outcomes that are being claimed.</li> <li>• Currency – the learning outcomes are still valid and reliable</li> <li>• Quality – the learning has reached the acceptable level</li> <li>• Relevance – the learning is applicable to the subject claimed</li> <li>• Transferability – the learning outcome can be applied outside the specific context in which it was learned</li> </ul> Comparability – the assessment mechanisms adopted ensure that the prior learning is comparable in content and standard with the subject(s) in which credit is sought and the standards applied in assessing prior learning should not be greater than those required to pass the subject(s).
On completion of the RPL the Guild Trainer will provide the learner with feedback regarding the process. The Guild Trainer will explain the process from this point and identify when the learner will receive notification of their results, their right to appeal a result and what will occur once the RPL has been completed.	State Branches
The results of the RPL are recorded in the learner management system. All associated documentation is maintained in the learner’s file.	State Branches
